

The Volta Basin Development Challenge Program

The Challenge Program on Water and Food (CPWF) is addressing a development challenge in the Volta basin on integrated management of rainwater and small reservoir for multiple uses. The research-for-development program is designed to explore the institutional, socio-economic and technical aspects of small reservoir development and maintenance, embedded within a wider rainwater management system in the Basin.